Description:

SciReg.org register system reliably and effectively protects the rights of authors by fixing the publication date and confirming the authorship of any kind of materials. Unlike conventional systems, SciReg is a comprehensive register having no limitations whatsoever as regards to the subject matter of copyright. It is the SciReg register system where the author of a material becomes a registered author of his/her particular work – invention, melody, text, scientific publication, or other material, and where he/she can confirm his/her priority and copyright at any time. The SciReg register system protects the present-day science against pressure of corporations and scientific institutions, and influence of patent authorities – both moderators of the scientific, artistic and engineering progress. SciReg secures inherent human rights to intellectual property protection, scientific and creative results.
