Comment:

An interesting coincidence concerning orphan works and a recent investigation into using some reports that have been orphaned. An organization hired us and other consultants several years ago to create documents to help designers of buildings select certain types of cooling equipment that is not usually specified. The organization, American Gas Cooling Center, was dissolved. Recently I was contacted by another party who was interested in something very similar. I would like to ask permission to use these old documents and update them but I can't find anyone to ask. I'm not sure I can use them and if I can't I will end up rewriting many many pages for no good reason. It is an inefficient use of resources.
