

Ratliff-Clancy-20050304120003

To: Julie L. Sigall
Associate Register for Policy & International Affairs

Date: 03/04/2005

From: Clancy Ratliff

Comment:

I'm a teacher at the University of Minnesota, and for a first-year writing course, I was assembling a course pack, and I wanted to use the poem "Roseville, Minn., U.S.A." by Marcela Christine Lucero-Trujillo. The poem was in the book New Worlds of Literature, 2nd edition, edited by Jerome Beaty and J. Paul Hunter. The acknowledgement in the book I found the poem in is: "Copyright 1976. Reprinted by permission of Patricia Trujillo-Villalobos." The copyright clearance center at my university was never able to track down Patricia Trujillo-Villalobos.