

I'm an artist who's concerned that my work may be wrongfully used by people who find uncredited copies on the Internet and who don't try to find me to ask permission. Copyright abuse is rampant on the internet. I, and many others, have had our works stolen from our websites, used without permission or credit, and sometimes even offered for sale by the thieves. I do not want to see this become even easier for the unscrupulous.

Zelda K Workman